The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects wistfully on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime and is asked by his mother about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly suggests that Tom be skipped school that afternoon and sent out to get whistled at. Tom’s mother has heard and when she sees that Tom’s collar is still scrunched up, she agrees. Aunt Polly is satisfied, but not, Tom’s half-brother, Sid. Tom has sworn the short himself to disguise himself as his cousin, Joe.

Tom goes out of the house to study the law of whistling. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom, an overgrown and arrogant boy, chases an attractive young woman and eventually chases her out of the way.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitrash the fence. Sam passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of marble. Sam almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his labor.
